

Creating Successful Places

New Children's Hospital, Dublin

Benedict Zucchi BDP.

An architectural rendering of a modern hospital building with a prominent green roof. The building features a mix of dark grey and light grey facades with large windows. In the foreground, a street scene is depicted with people walking, a cyclist, a stroller, and cars. The sky is blue with light clouds, and the sun is visible on the right side of the image.

Specific

versus

Generic

⑥ The external expression of differences in function (as well as important as the similarities) and motivation for representative form also tend to segregate the university into specialized disciplines only.

DISSOCIATION

⑦ As a result rather a system giving the minimum organization necessary to an association of disciplines. The specific nature of different functions are accommodated within a general framework which expresses universality.

ASSOCIATION

“The 30 Most Architecturally Impressive Hospitals in the World”

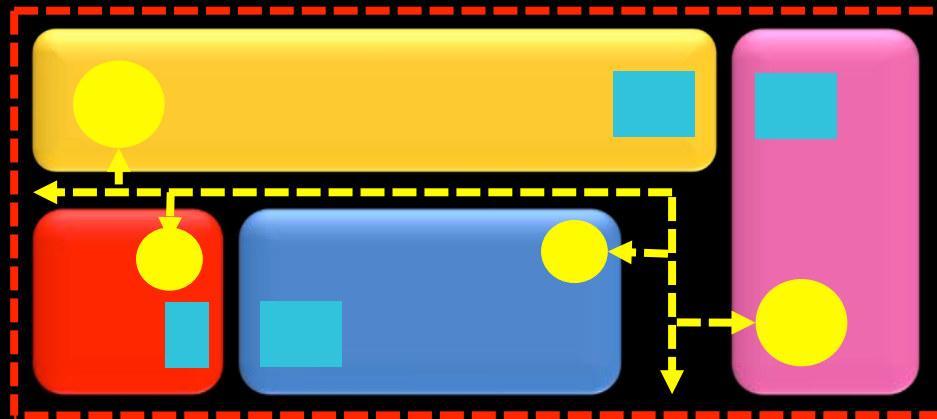

“The 30 Most Architecturally Impressive Hospitals in the World”

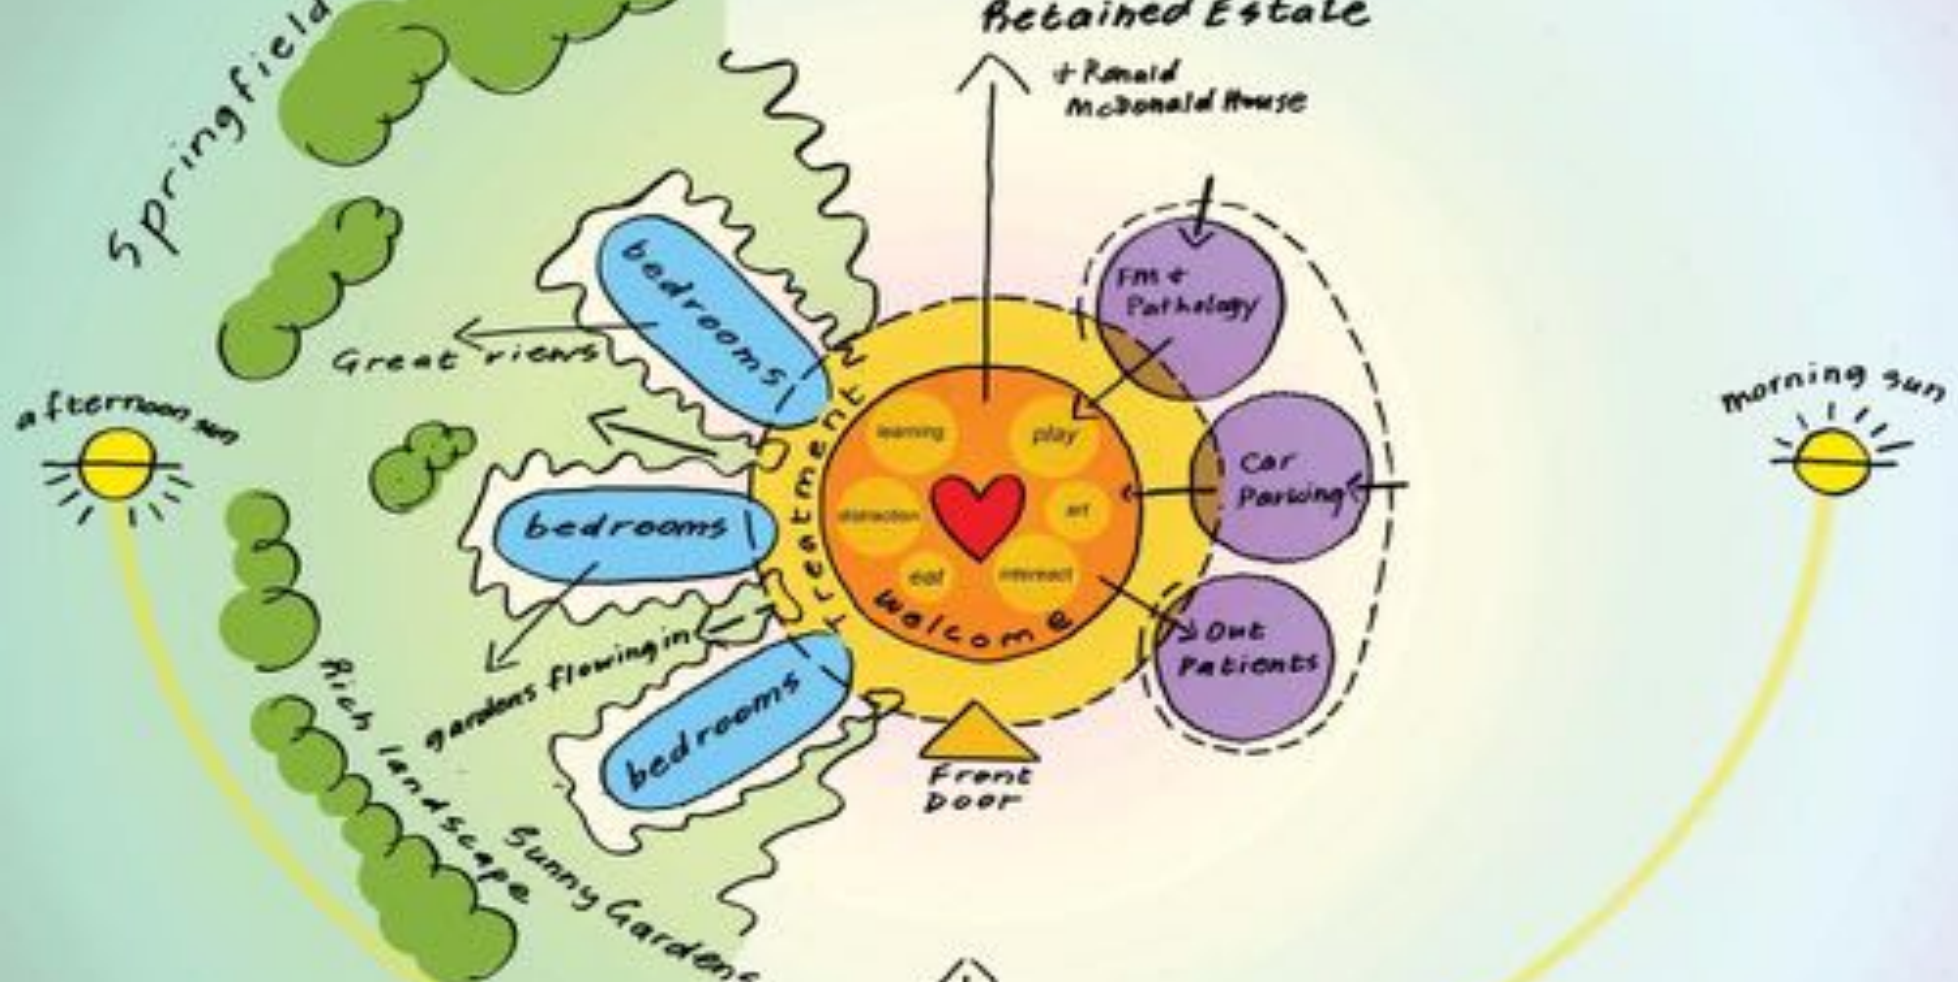

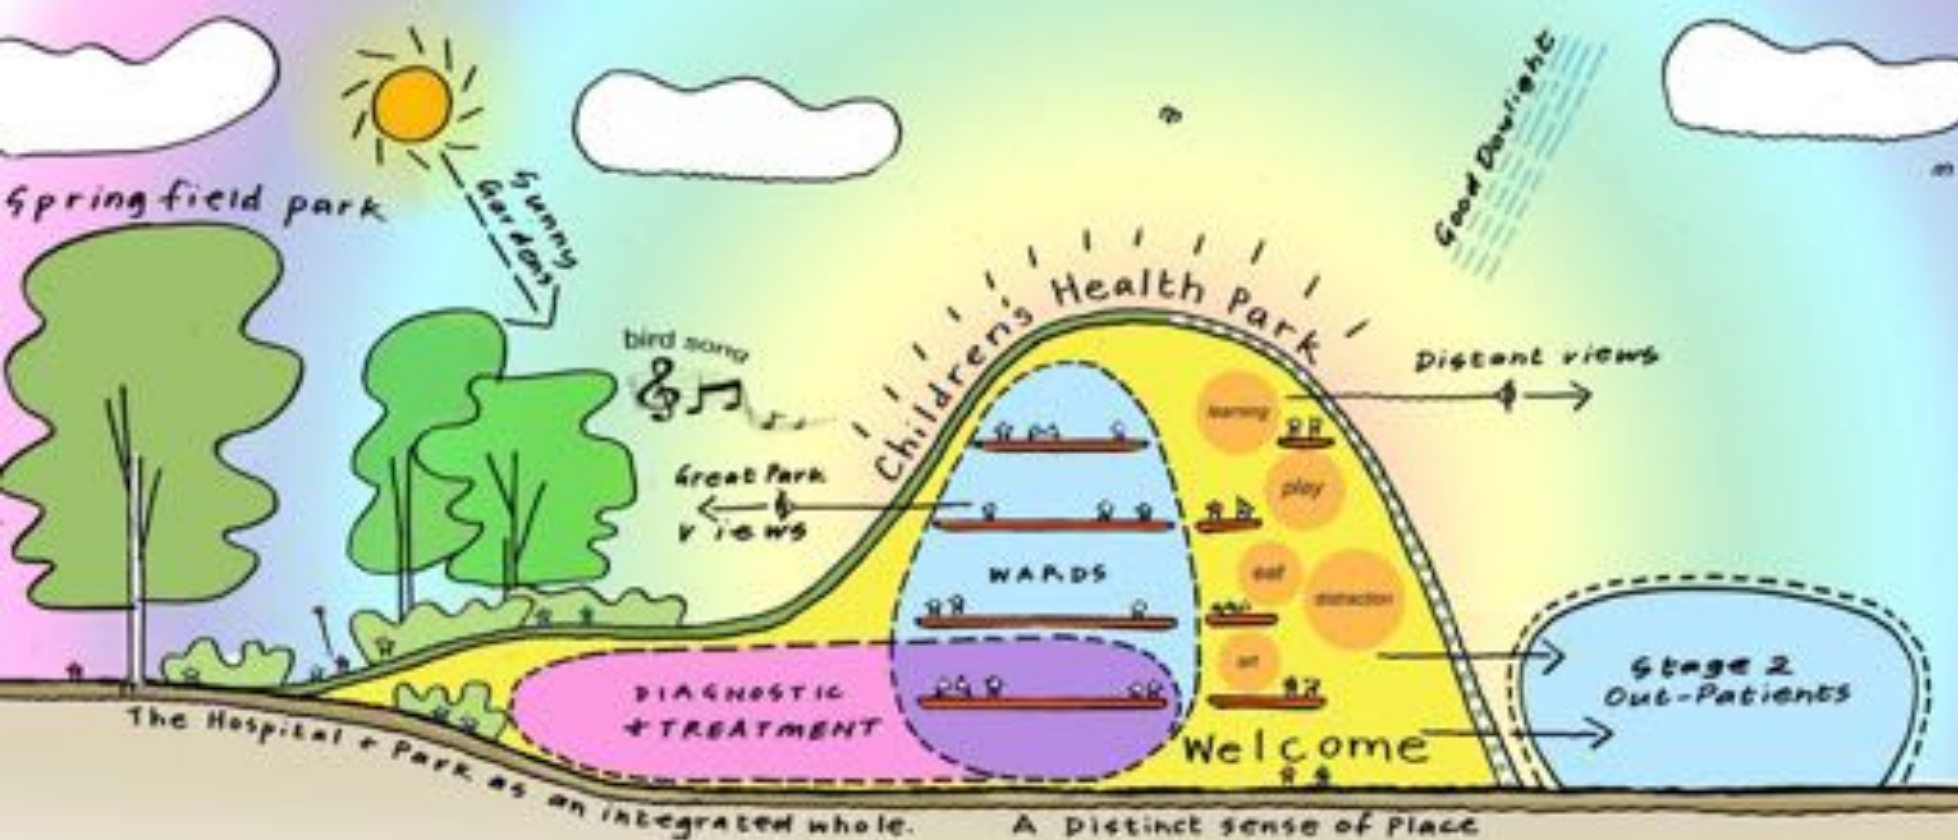

“The 30 Most Architecturally Impressive Hospitals in the World”

“Thinking inside the box”

The Hill in the Park

The design challenge

- Merger of 3 existing hospitals
- Tri-location model: children's + adult + maternity
- Creation of a completely new national identity
- Very large scale
- Complex site context
- Fast programme

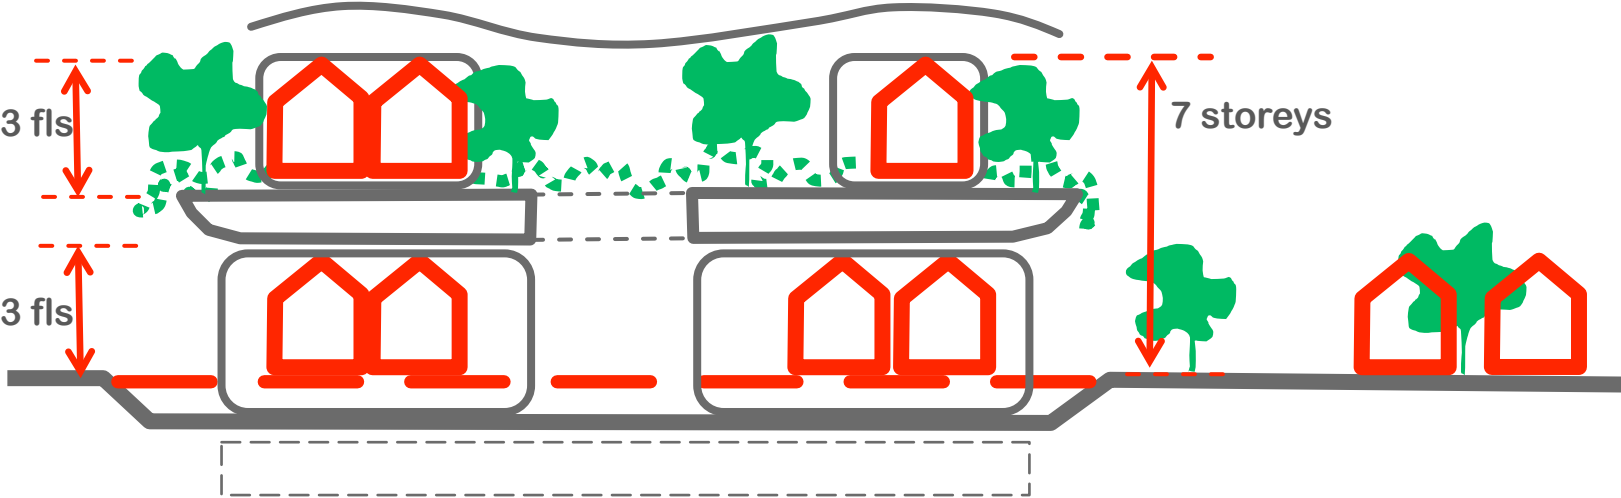

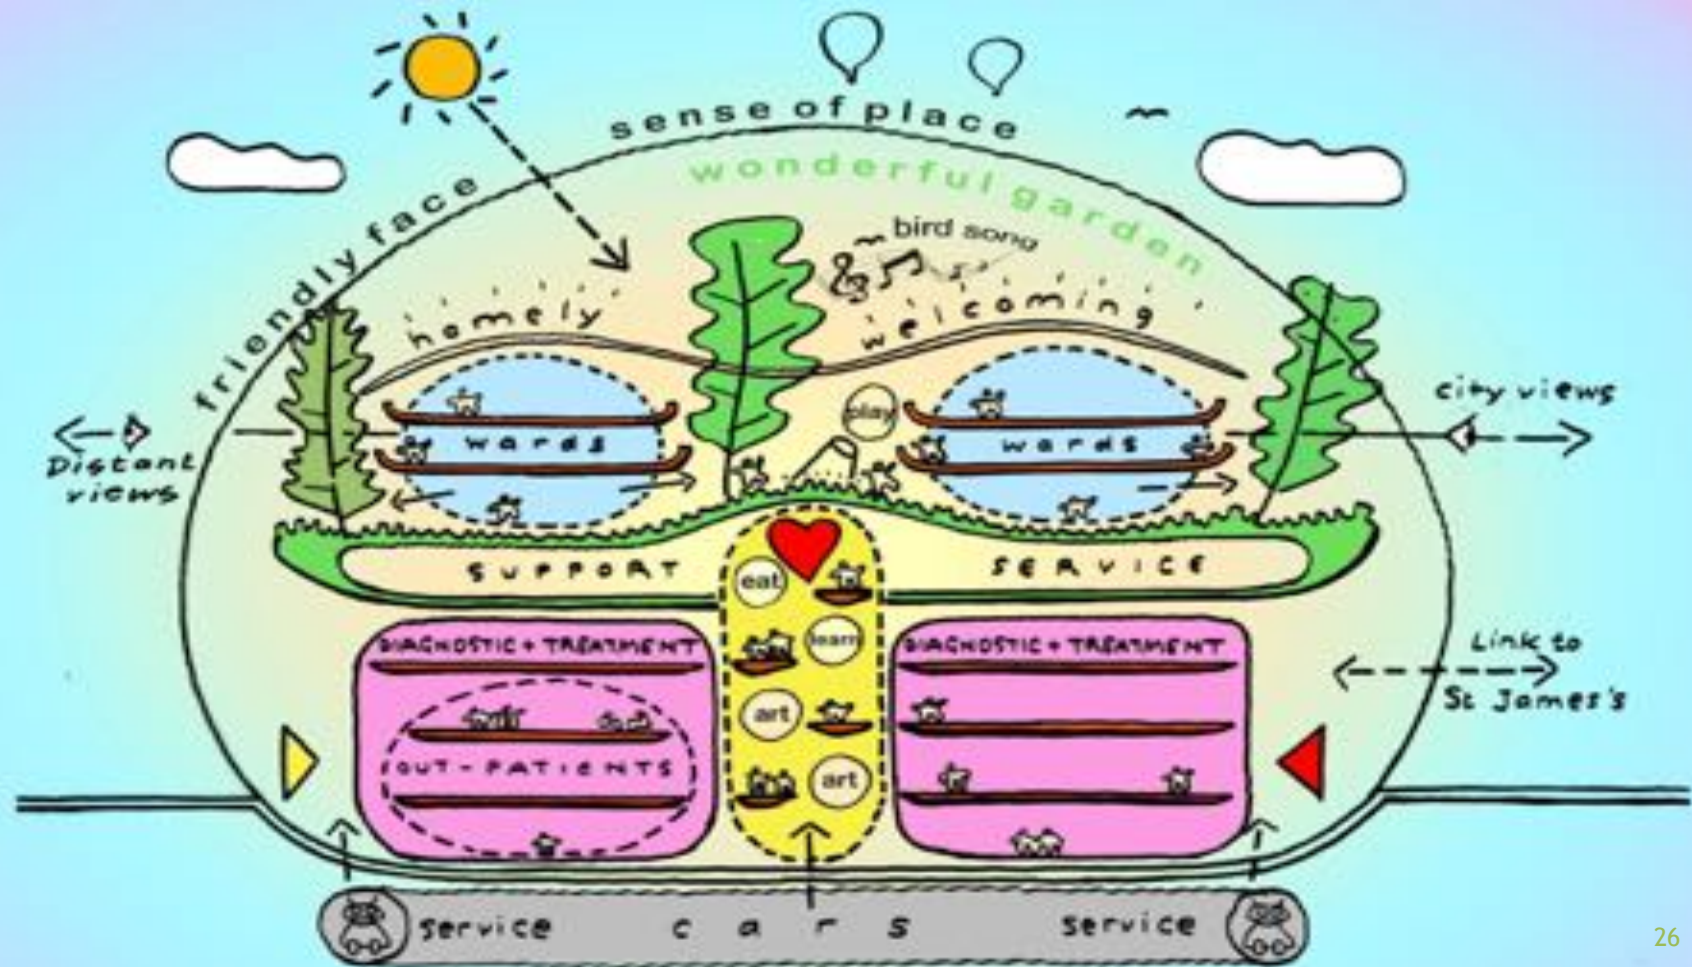

Perceived Scale

“The city is nothing
other than a large house. And the house is nothing other than a small city”

Leon Battista Alberti

A PUBLIC REALM STRATEGY

Masterplan - Roof Level showing context of UIS proposals

24.11.2014

16.02.2015

10.04.2015

10.04.2015

30.06.2015

24.07.2015

02.05.2016

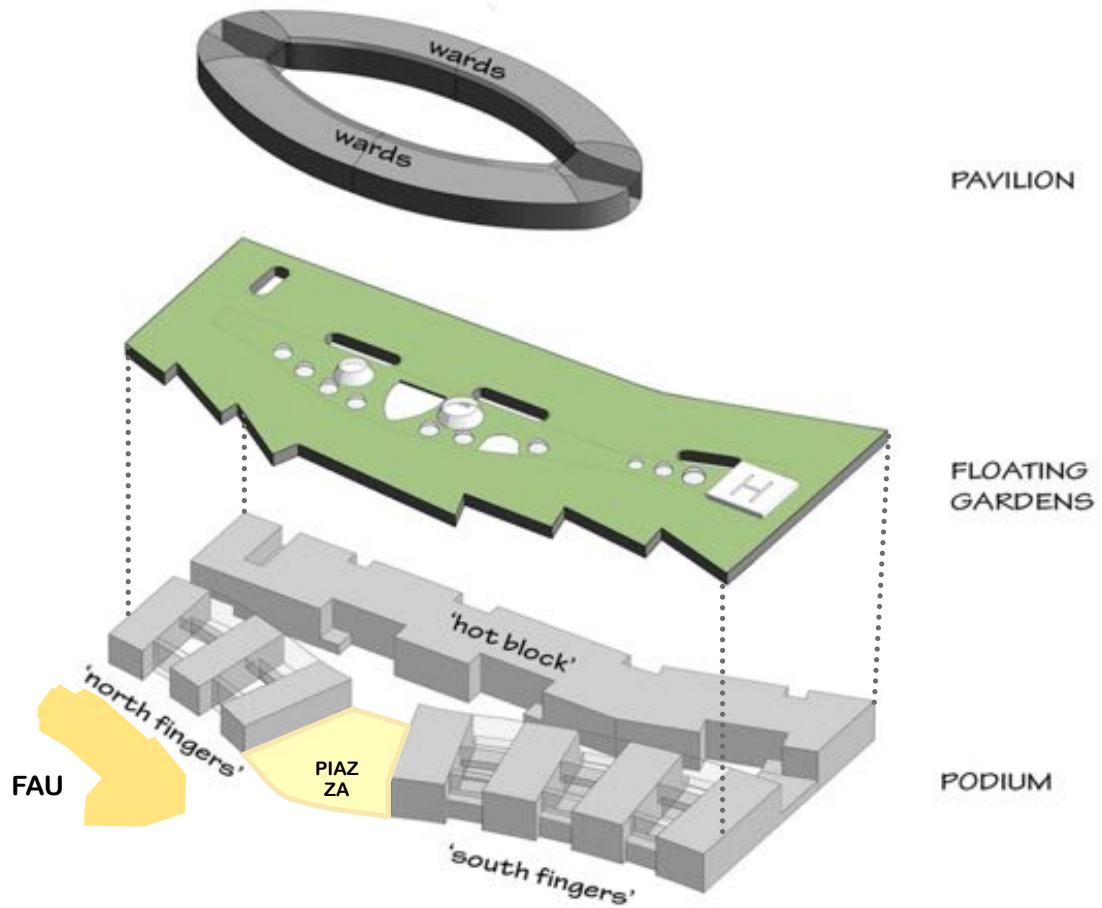

02.05.2016

02.05.2016

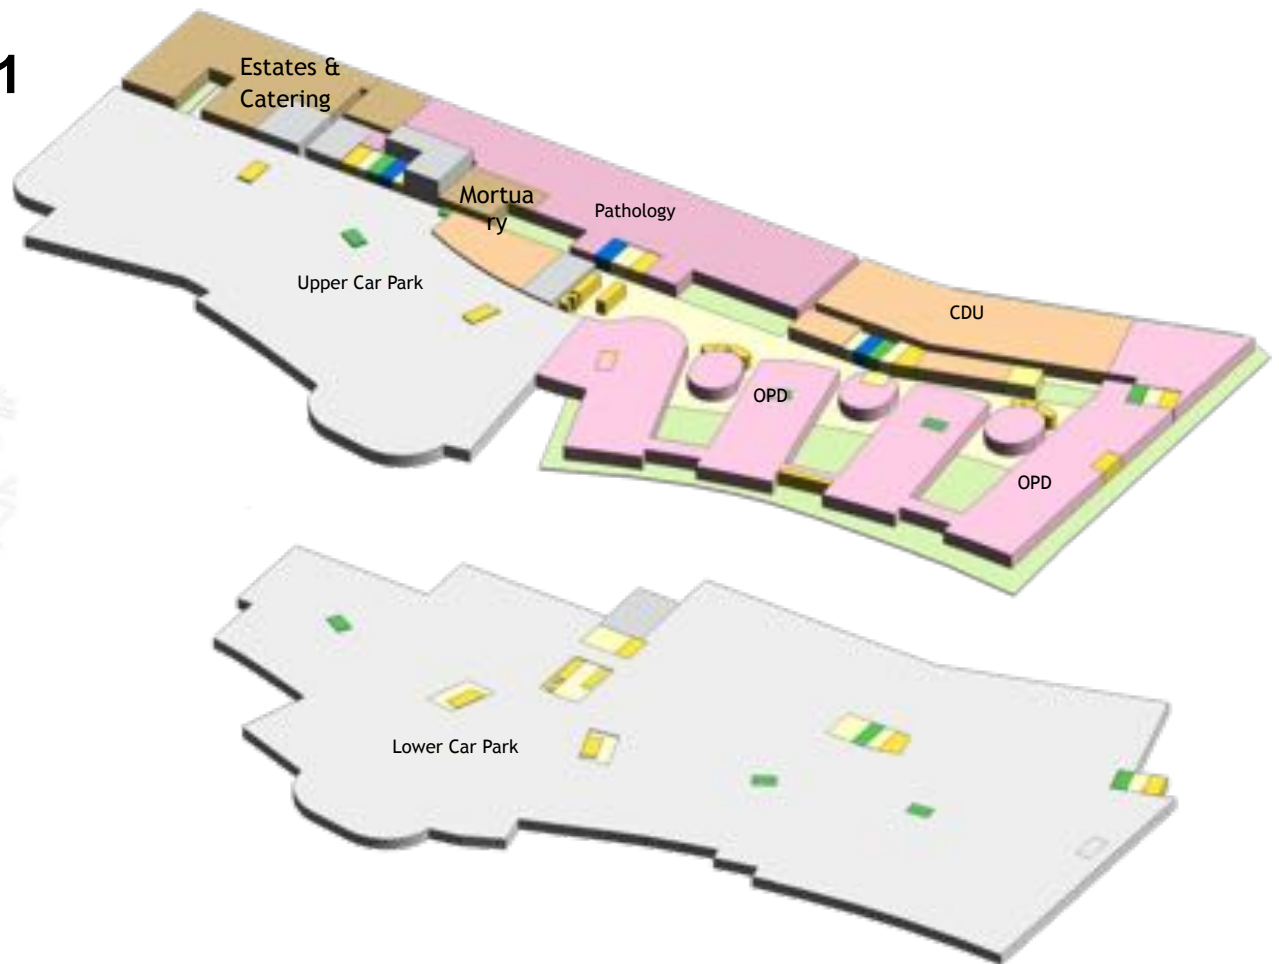

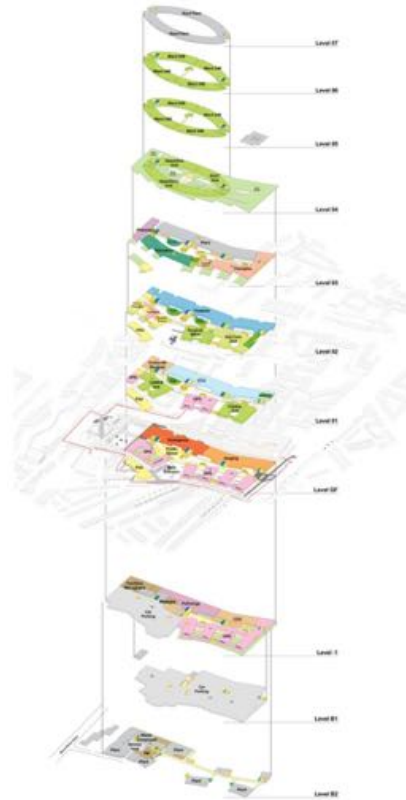

Level – B2

Level -1 & B1

Level - Ground Floor

Concourse – upper ground level

Concourse – restaurant & outpatients

Level - 01

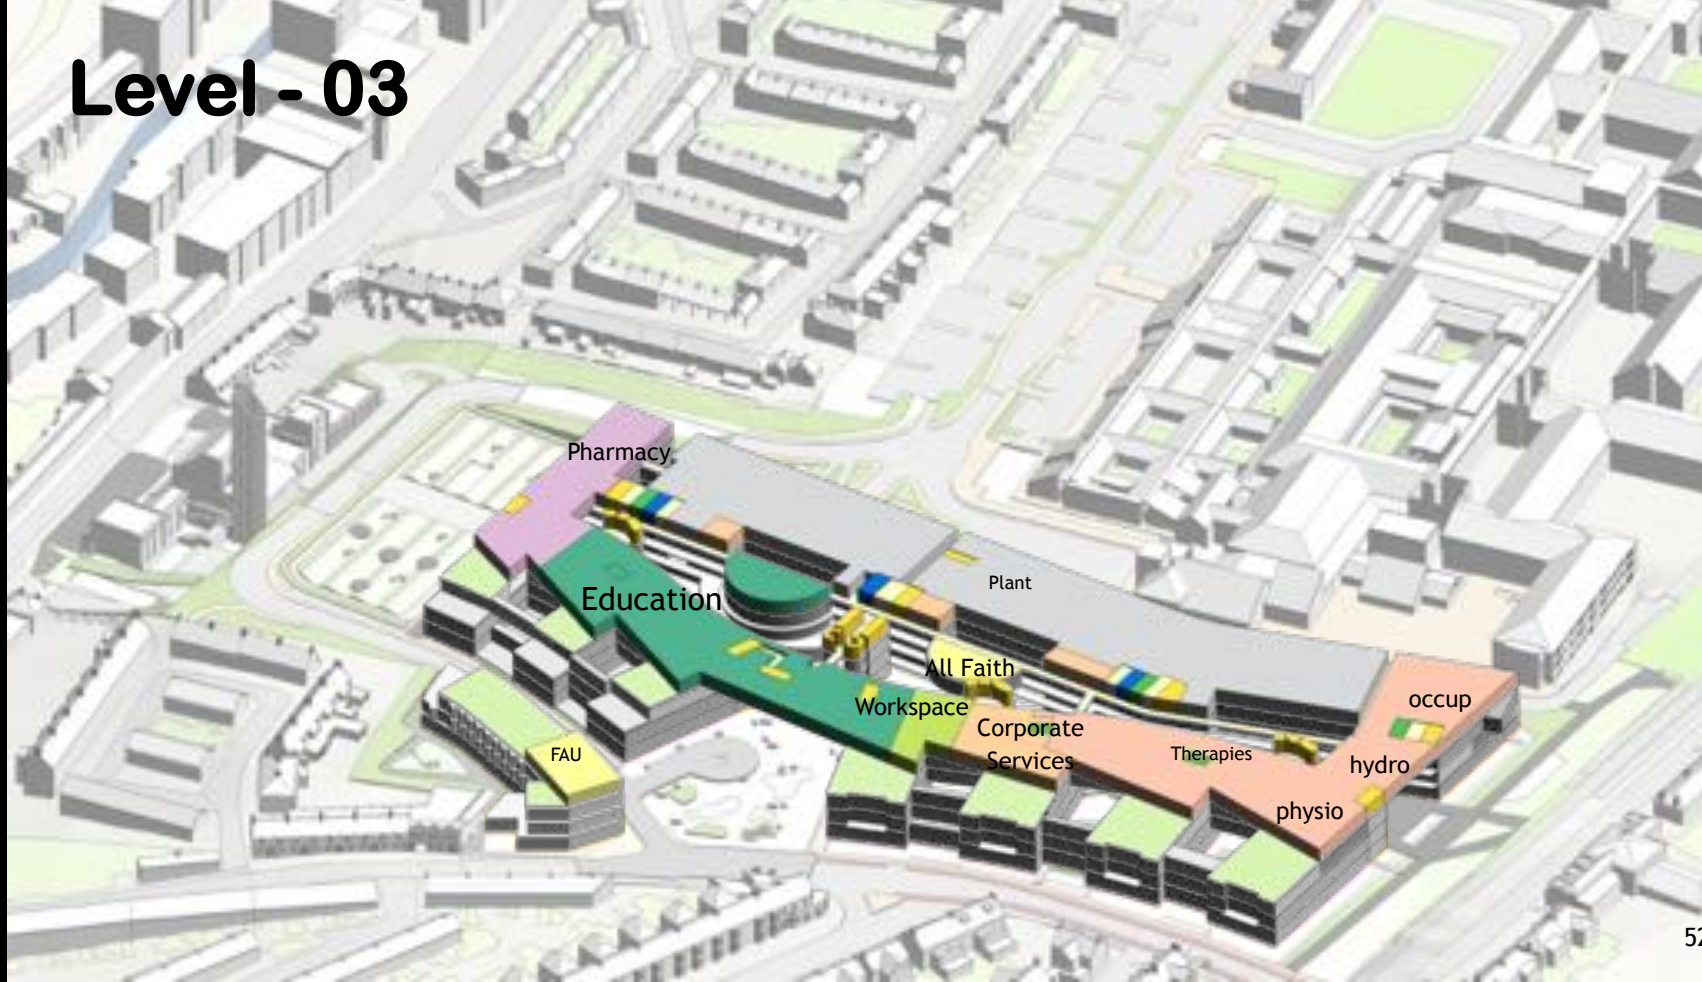

Critical Care Unit – 62 beds

Level - 02

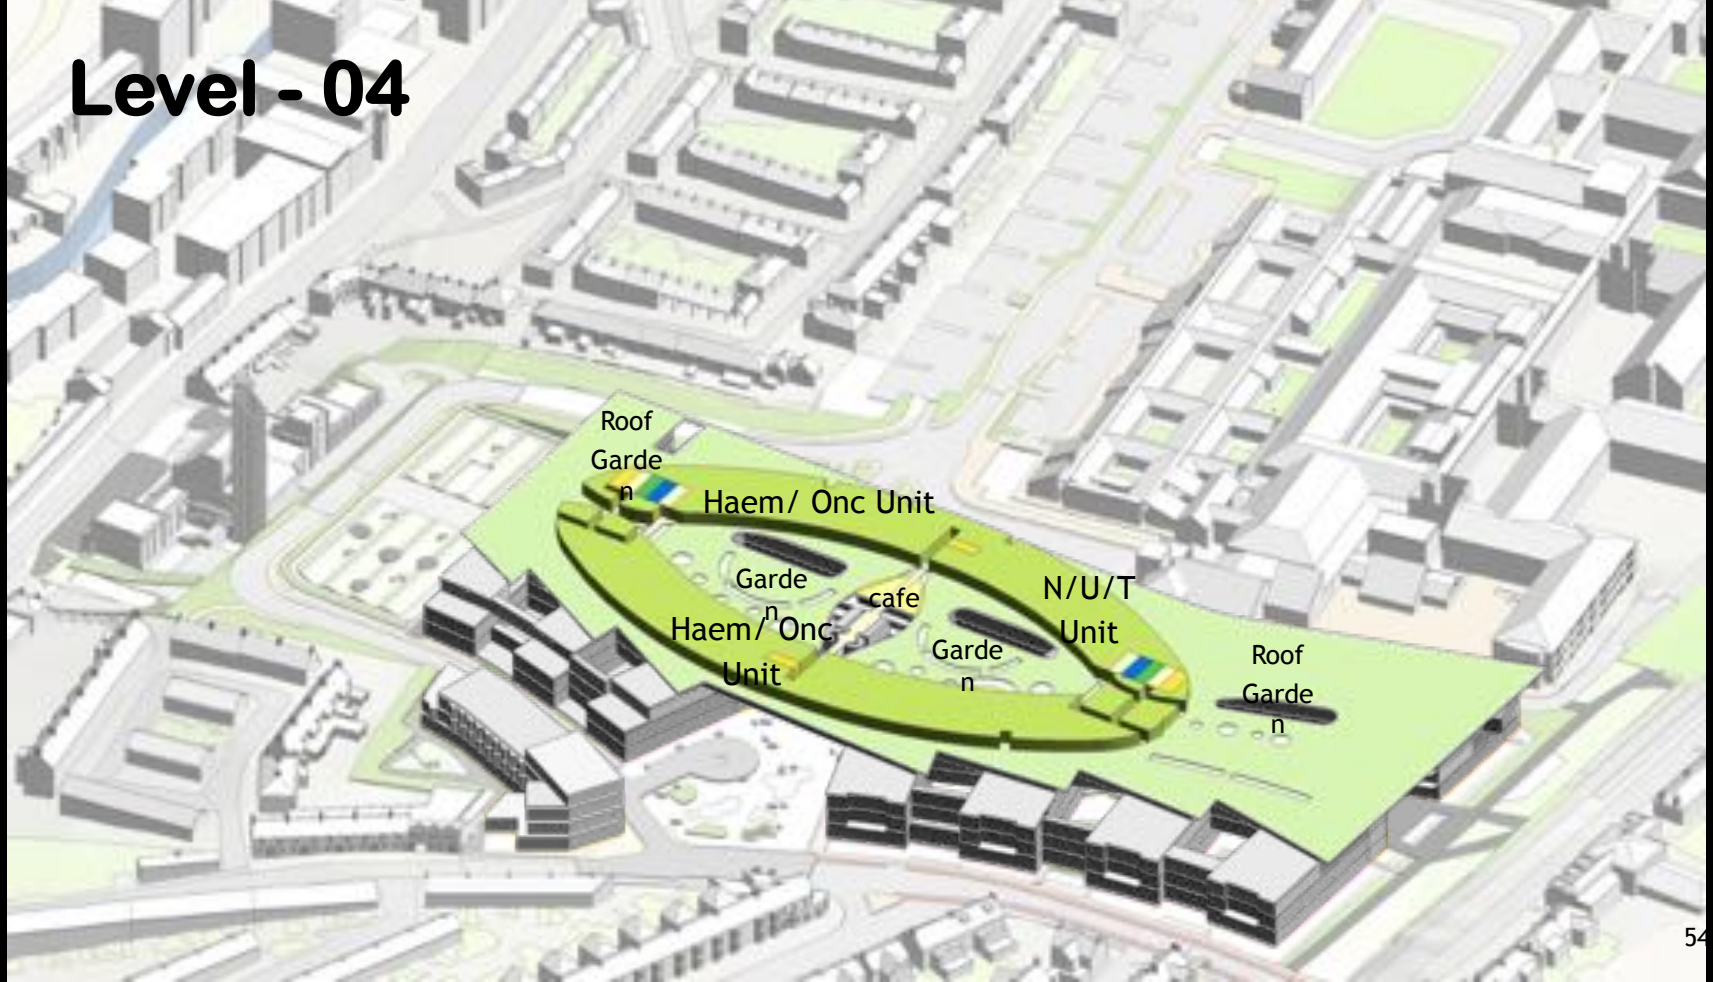

Level - 03

Level - 04

Specific

versus

Generic

⑥ The external expression of differences in function (as well as important as the similarities) and motivation for representative form also tend to segregate the university into specialized disciplines only.

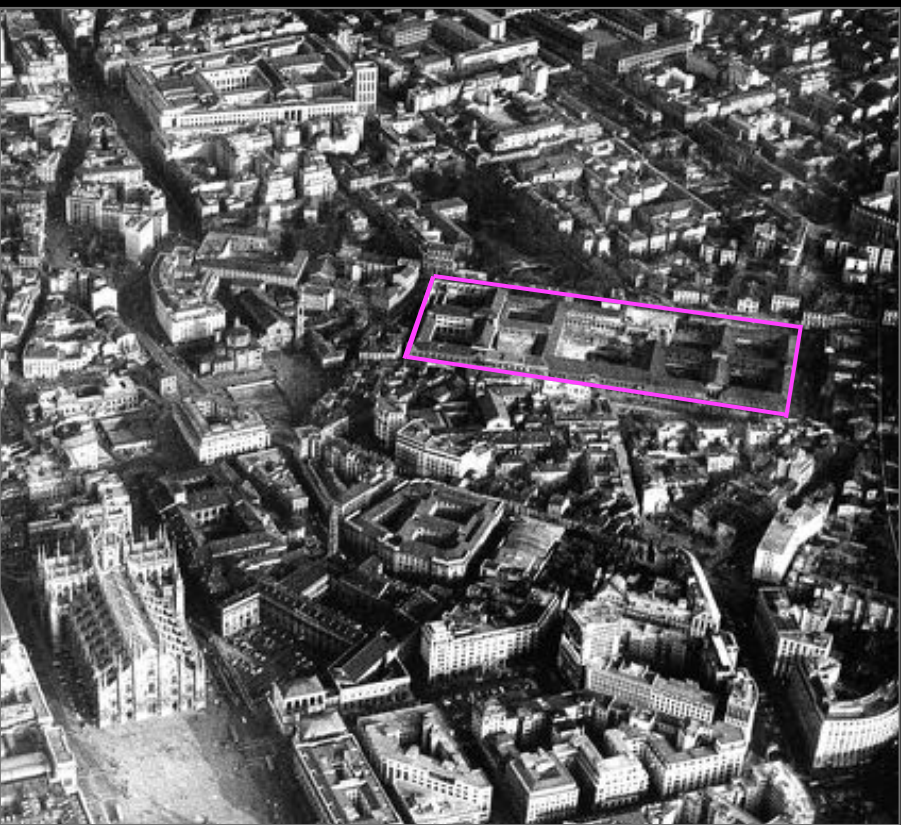

DISSOCIATION

⑦ As a result rather a system giving the minimum organization necessary to an association of disciplines. The specific nature of different functions are accommodated within a general framework which expresses universality.

ASSOCIATION

“Life, spaces and buildings – and in that order please”

Jan Gehl

BDP.